

the winery

The majority of our approximately 17-acre vineyard is for whites, but we also make fine, full-bodied reds. We place great value on craftsmanship and I think you'll be able to tell the difference. The conscious avoidance of pesticides and active crop management in the vineyards are already a matter of course.

I almost forgot the highlight of our business: Our old loess cellar. It's the perfect ripening cellar for our wines with a longer maturation period. The Wagram itself is already quite the attraction. Its up to 40 metre-high fault scarp made of pleistocene loess is the typical soil for our grape varieties. It gives the wine the uniqueness we have all really come to appreciate and uphold.

Yes, our business is small but exclusive. Many private customers and gastronomers have come to know, appreciate and savour our consistently fine wines. From Austria and Germany all the way to the US.
